3. is assigned responsibility for coordinating the TALENT activities of GMD. In this capacity he assures that all pertinent TALENT data is available to and exploited by the concerned GMD analysts. in performing his duties, is continually faced with problems, the solutions to which require knowledge of A data. The most pressing of these problems involve ideas and proposals for future operations -- specifically the capabilities of the system to cover certain areas and to collect specific types of information. Secondary problems involve knowledge of past operations needed to assess available data.

Presently A cleared personnel are directly concerned with and participate in the above problems; however, their other commitments do not permit an adequate treatment. active engagement of these problems on a more or less continuous basis will greatly enhance this Division's ability to assist in project planning for guided missile targets as well as more completely assess certain data already collected.
